

New federal regulations

Heard, McElroy & Vestal, LLP places a high value on your privacy and the security of your personal information. We have policies in place to safeguard the information you provide to us whether it is in paper or electronic format.

New federal regulations were recently enacted to ensure all tax preparers handle their clients' information with care. The regulations require that we obtain your written consent before we use or disclose your information for any purpose other than preparing your tax return.

For instance, due to the new rules we are unable to provide copies of your tax returns or tax documents directly to third parties, such as banks and mortgage companies, without signed consent.

Enclosed are two consent forms for your review – consent for disclosure and consent for use. The forms describe the reasons why we have used or disclosed your information in the past and request your consent to continue doing so in the future. We assure you we will continue to respect your privacy and maintain confidentiality.

Please note, you may give your consent for all, some, or none of the situations. To give us your consent, please complete and return both forms to our office via hand delivery, e-mail, fax, or postal mail.

If you have any questions regarding these consent forms, we will be happy to discuss them with you. Please contact your Heard, McElroy & Vestal tax advisor at (318) 429-1525. You can also find additional resources, including the text of the IRS regulation, on our website at www.hmvcpa.com/resources/info-center.
